

Why Dating Apps SUCK and how School of Connection Sydney can help you avoid these heart & headaches.

He's no Jason Mamo so, swipe left!

- Dating apps force you to be incredibly superficial even if you don't want to be. No human can be reduced to 9 photos & 500 characters, and it sucks to be judged on such a tiny part of who you are.

You looked way better in your photos...

- While it may feel good to upload the 9 most attractive photos of you, the down side is that when you meet face to face, people can be disappointed by your actual face. What a shitty way to start a date!

But you had so much to say via text...

- We're getting so used to communicating via tech that we are forgetting how to interact. Nothing is worse than when the online chemistry is sparking and the real deal is awkward and uncomfortable.

It was going great then he just ghosted me...

- We are losing basic human decency and kindness because people are too lazy and just don't care, but over time this erodes people's faith in dating, love & relationships. It's just outright rude & depressing.

So, don't let this nightmare become your reality.
